MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The time of year has arrived that we reflect on the past year and dream about the coming year! The past year has presented us with a lot of great times, being with our fishing buddies is the GREATEST, catching fish, some rather large is the GREATEST and helping promote our club and all it stands for is the GREATEST. I for one look forward the month of December, a month to be with friends and family, as well as begin to plan our goals and activities for the New Year.

We begin the month with our annual Christmas party to be held at Ridgley Country Club on Dec. 6. The Christmas Party IS our December meeting. The highlight of the party is Suresh's slide show. The show is comprised of the many photographs submitted by you guys, depicting your triumphs on the water. Some of you really did good, I would be remiss if I didn't add that some of you surprised me with your accomplishments. Keep it up.

I would like to take this time to appeal to all of you to get more involved next year, not only by going fishing with the club on its monthly outings but also coming to our Fly Fish 101 events. You can find enjoyment in helping us introduce our guest and members to the sport we love so much. In addition, if you don't wish to assist in the 101 event you ALL are welcome to join the event to JUST fish. We usually cook hotdogs or serve sandwiches at these events. It's your club, come on out and enjoy.

Our second meeting of last month saw Ed Engle present a fabulous program on trout fishing. I was impressed at the attendance we had to see Ed. He was very impressed as well. Ed has published several books that may be of interest to you, simply search Ed Engle on Amazon. If you didn't attend you missed out on a chance to win the door prize of a TFO rod of your choice.

Local Outing Planned For December

Where: Lewisville Lake Environmental Learning Area (LLELA),
201 Jones St, Lewisville, TX 75057
<http://llela.unt.edu/>

Cost $5.00 per car- so car pool, if you like.

When: Saturday, December 10, 8:30 a.m. - ?

Lewisville Lake Environmental Learning Area (LLELA) is the tail water of the Lake Lewisville Dam, and located within an hour's drive of Fort Worth. Our club has done a few conservation projects there over the past few years, but it's a wonderful place to fish locally.

We'll meet in the parking area of LLELA and gear up. From here, we'll plan strategies for catching native fish. Up near the dam when water is generating, hybrid bass and sand bass are the most common species, but Smallmouth Buffalo are fun to catch in the shallows. FYI--the State does stock trout at LLELA, but the first stocking isn't until the first of January.

Gear: Most fishing situations here require a 5wt rod, but the angler can choose lighter or heavier equipment. Waders and boots are recommended, so bring your own. Bring your favorite warm water flies including wooly buggers, gurglers, poppers, Clouser minnows.

While the club is not providing lunch, those who choose to fish half-day can choose to head over to a local eatery. Those who want to keep fishing should plan to bring water and portable lunch.

Contact: Although this is not a Fly Fish 101 event, we can accommodate the novice fly fisher. If you are planning to go and don't have a rod or reel, contact Les Jackson, keebranch@sbcglobal.net or 817-253-0943 (cell).

Fort Worth Fly Fishers cordially invites you to our

January Speaker:

Johnny Martinez Shares Experiences About Fishing Lake Athens

Johnny Martinez is known to many in the club, as he is an active member of the Dallas Fly Fishers and runs the guide service, Johnny on the Fly Sport Fly Fishing at Lake Athens, Texas.

He will be sharing information about how and where to fish at Lake Athens, a beautiful lake located less than two hours southeast of Fort Worth. It is near the Texas Freshwater Fisheries Center, the site of the annual FlyFest Texas. This lake is known for largemouth bass in the 3- to 8-pound range but has produced a lake record of 13.81 pounds.

Johnny has been fishing since he was age 7 and fishing local lakes for bass, crappie and catfish most of his life. In 2009 was an eventful year as he caught his personal best bass, a 10 lb Bass on a bait caster, and later that year he was introduced to Fly Fishing. He says with laugh, "From there it has been all downhill." Johnny was first introduced to fly fishing by the Dallas Fly Fishers at a class that they offered at Richland College. There were 6 students and 4 instructors.

"They opened the class by informing us that the number one question asked is" where do you Fly Fish around here?" After teaching us about the fly rod system and showing us how to assemble and rig up they took us outside to try and cast," he said. After whipping the rod around a bit, Richard Johnson talked to him about timing and make the stop. After a few tries I made a decent cast and heard that sound. "The sound that the line makes as it shoots through the eyelets. That did it for me, I was hooked," he said.

Since then he has joined several clubs, built some of my own fly rods, learned fly tying, have become a TPWD angler education Instructor, I am a register volunteer at the Texas State Fishery in Athens. He has help in the DFF angler education programs, have plan several fishing outings for the club and have served on the DFF board.

"Since I started Fly fishing I have caught more fish than ever before and found a deep love and respect for the sport. In 2015 organized and presented the first Lake Athens Fly Fishing Festival and we are currently planning and working on the third festival scheduled for April 2017

On April 17, 2014 I caught my biggest Bass on the Fly Rod "Talula" pushing 11 lbs and she changed my life," Johnny said.

In 2015, he and his wife moved to Lake Athens to live, fish and start his guide service. He has spent hundreds of days on Lake Athens learning the topography and patterns of various species and have enjoyed guiding many guest and clients on beautiful Lake Athens.

2017 Presentation Line Up

We already have a great line-up of speakers and presentations in the coming year. As always, we meet the first Tuesday of the month.

Jan: Johnny Martinez Bass fishing at Lake Athens

Feb: Landon Mayer, speaker from Colorado, to speak about trout fishing

March: Johnny Walker, Red's Lake Fork Fly Fishing Adventures, to speak about how and where to fish at Lake Fork

April: Jeff Johnson to speak about saltwater fishing around Rockport

May: Matt Bennet, nationally known fly tyer, will discuss effective Texas flies as well as possibly host a tying session earlier in the day (TBD)

June: Club annual casting class: Led by Jim Bass and FFFF casting volunteers. Place TBD.

A Day to Remember

Editor's note: This article was submitted by member Adam Tate, who shares not only his personal best trout story, but he got to share the trip with his father and brother

I wish I would have taken more time to give many recaps and pictures to paint a story. Today was a day I'll never forget, and I'll share my biggest fish story of 2016... It happened today.

2016 has been a special fly fishing year for me. Hi, some might know me just as the kid who always has a fishing report, the youngest dude in the FWFF, or others know my name is Adam (instagram @reeltatetales) and I love to fish. I dream of new patterns to tie, and drool over the fish they might catch. It's hard to believe I've only been fly fishing 1 year and 4 months. Beyond all the adventures, the fish, and the stories there is one thing in 2016 that stands out above the rest.

Getting to fly fish with my dad. I took every opportunity I could to fish with my father. Whether that was in the back pond of my folks house, Broken Bow, Brazos River, New Mexico 3 times, and now the Little Red River. I knew these opportunities will someday disappear. We'd talk about the new flies we are tying, and prep for trips long in advance.

Today, we sit in a cabin along side the Little Red River in Arkansas and reminisce on the day. This is the day we had prepped for, but never knew the stars would align just right.

Sunday 11.20.16.

We set out of the cabin with high hopes and low expectations. The wind from yesterday had finally settled, and the 29 degree air froze your nose. We walked along river between the golden brown and red sparse trees. Our morning was slow, but we continued our search for the fly patterns that were working. A few trout helped us realize only the dark flies were being taken. We kept on. The water was so clear. If you stared in it long enough it'd put you in a trance that only nature could do.

It was a blast helping my brother catch his first brown trout on the fly. It's always fun watching someone come to the, "I get it" moment on the river. There was shallow water, fast, and slow water for the choosing.

We decided on some deeper water to try our hand with the techniques we learned up on the Rio Grande. It wasn't too long before my father landed a 15" brown trout (his personal best). Right after we celebrated that marker he hooked another trout we all knew would surpass his just landed personal best. It did! 17.5" brown trout for the books and big smiles all around. I tried and tried with nice fish landed, but no monster that headed for the backing.

We knew with the water low it was best to go explore new water, so we did. After warming up the legs dad told us, "we should try it here." I didn't think it looked special, but why not we're out her fishing. I believe I had made my 4th cast and drift when I thought I was hanging up on vegetation. I did something different than I had ever done before. You see when I think there is a fish hitting one of my nymphs I'm setting that hook without hesitation. For some reason I paused. I pulled and put tension on the line without out it setting the drift free. In that split second with a tight line I saw my leader move perpendicular to the river and I set that hook! This trout didn't run right away. No, it kind of paused as if to say, "Boy you better tape your ankles!"

All of a sudden the 12 feet of lined I had stripped in was gone and my reel was clicking. I yelled over to my brother and father to come help, and screamed, "I get to buy a new net!" PAUSE. I told my dad before the trip when I catch a fish too big for my net then I get to and I'm going to buy a new net. RESUME. Auto pilot took over, and we began to dance! It's always the first sight that really gets you going. I needed an oxygen mask.

This was going to be the BIGGEST fish I'd ever caught on the fly. We talked about our landing game plan in hopes it would all go accordingly. The trout was finally up close and reality has set in. We have to land this fish!

Then the fishermen's greatest fear. When you are in the water the fish has a knack for structure, and sometimes that structure is your brother and father standing beside you. I bent that 6wt TFO with 5x tippet, and turned the trout's head hoping I don't hear a snap.

What felt like minutes was just a few seconds. I lifted my rod up, my dad scooped head first with our now tiny net and then held the beast down. I was at total peace. There was no doubt in my mind we did it. After a quick measure at 25.5" and a burst of pictures he was off. My biggest trout on the fly. Did I mention I set my personal best at 22.5" on a streamer the day before? This is all surreal to me. Thank you 2016, this has been one incredible year.

Fly of the Month- "Jujubee Midge"

The December fly of the month is from the creative tying desk of Arvada, Colorado based Charlie Cravens. Charlie is an accomplished fly tying author, fly designer and owner of a great fly shop (Charlie's Flybox in Arvada, CO - <http://www.charliesflyboxinc.com/>). His website has a great tying reference, with step by step instructions for almost 200 of his designs. If you're ever in the Denver area (Arvada is a Denver suburb), a stop by Charlie's shop is a must for any person with interest in fly tying. One of the best equipped shops for tying materials that I've ever seen. Charlie was also a guest speaker for FWWF a year or so ago. He had an outstanding presentation and tying demo. Charlie has been tying since he was eight and had the opportunity to fish and work with folks like John Barr (as in the Copper John and many other famous flies). Look at Charlie's site for a wide range of color combinations to tie this fly for matching the hatch.

Charlie Craven's Jujubee Midge

Hook: TMC 2488 (or 2457) or similar nymph hook, size 18-24

Thread: White 10/0, 8/0 or even 6/0 for larger sizes for the body undercoat with black 8/0 for the thorax.

Abdomen: Wapsi Super or Supreme hair. Colors in your choice. 2/3 strands of a primary color with a single strand of a ribbing color. For the demo fly, I choose olive primary and red ribbing. Wingcase: Umpqua Flouro-Fiber (I didn't have any of this so I used white antron yarn).

1) De-barb the hook and securely fasten in the vice. Wrap an underbody of white thread from about one hook eye diameter behind the hook to about half way down the bend of the hook. Wrap the thread back toward the eye and build a tapered underbody.

2) Group the super hair primary color and add the ribbing strand and tie in the whole group at the thread starting point.

3) Wrap the thread over the super hair, back to the half way point of the hook bend, Lifting up and keeping tension on the bundle so the super hair stay on the top side of the hook. Return the thread to the tie in point near the eye, maintaining a smooth underbody (any bumps will show thru the super hair when it is wrapped over the underbody).

4) Grab the super hair bundle and wrap a smooth abdomen by keeping the super hair bundle tightly grouped and wrapping with touching, adjacent wraps forward to the tie in point near the eye. Wrap four or five wraps of thread to lock the super hair in place. Note how the red super hair has created a ribbing effect. At this point, you could coat the fly with Sally Hansen's or clear cure to create a super durable fly. The super hair is reasonably tough, so this is an optional step.

5) Clip off the excess super hair, whip finish the white thread, clip the thread. Start a layer of black thread and build a bulging thorax of black thread.

6) Attach the Antron yarn (or Flouro-Fiber) on top of the thorax, bind down toward the rear of the fly.

7) Pull the Antron over the thorax, toward the front of the fly and bind down right behind the eye. This creates the wing case. Don't clip off the excess antron which at this point is pointing forward over the eye.

8) Using a bodkin, roughly divide the antron into two halves and pull one half to the right side of the fly and the other half to the left of the fly. Create a thread head, capturing the antron so it stays on the two sides of the fly.

9) Clip the antron to create two wing buds, slightly longer than the thorax. Here's a view of the fly from the top.

10) Whip finish, clip the thread away, and add a drop of head cement to complete the fly.

Local Fly Tying Events

One of the best ways to improve and learn new tying skills as well as make new friends is to attend one of the tying events held in our area on a weekly basis. If you are a seasoned and experienced tyer, many of us would be glad to learn a new pattern or technique from you. If you are new to the whole mystifying ordeal of putting thread and feathers on a hook, do not be intimidated. Come and watch, enjoy a cold one, and catch up on recent fishing reports. If you would like to try your hands at fly tying, no investment is needed, plenty of our club members have an extra vise and necessary tools to get you started. Try before you buy....
